WEDNESDAY EVENING, OCT. 6, 1880.

Hon. George A. Jenks. Graphic Democrat, Brookville, Pa.

George A. Jenks, the Democratic candidate for supreme judge, is in his forty-fifth year. He is the youngest of ten children, and was born in Punxsutawney, Jefferson county, Pa., March 26, 1836. His father, a physician, was decended from a Welsh Quaker family who were among the early settlers of Philadelphia. His mother was a daughter of the Rev. D. Barelay, a Scotch Presbyterian minister. When Mr. Jenks was a child his eldest brother, D. B. Jenks, who was a lawyer, was teaching him to count a hundred, and casually asked him what business he would follow when he became a man. The reply was, "Wait till to-morrow morning and I will tell you." During the night the determination was formed, and the next 'morning communicated by the subject of this sketch, that he would be a lawyer. This purpose, so early formed, was unalterably fixed. Thence forward his every labor and study was directed to the purpose of his life. To these early studies is largely to be attributed his careability to deal with original lores. capability to deal with original legal ques-tions, such as he manifested on the impeachment of Secretary Belknap, the discussion of the Louisiana and Oregon cases before the electoral commission, and the debate on the distribution of the Geneva

When attending the common school, one of the readers then in use was the introduction to the English reader. In this, one of the lessons was the story of the "Noble Basketmaker." From the story the moral was derived—that every man, no difference what his circumstances or purposes in life might be should learn a trade. This moral he determined to act upon. When fourteen years old, his father died: At sixteen he entered upon an apprenticeship of two years to the carpenter and joiner trade. When his term expired, he worked at his trade, taught school, and occasionally was employed at civil engineering, till he entered college. While engaged in the latter vocation, in the spring of 1865, he assisted to lay out year he entered the junior class at Jefferson college, having in the mornings and evenings, while teaching and working, steadily pursued his literary studies. He had been entered as a student of law before he entered college, and the Hon. W. P. Jenks, who was his guardian, had from early boyhood, directed him in his legal and literary reading. He graduated at Jeiferson college in the class of 1858, and in February, 1859, was admitted to the bar, in Jefferson county, having finished his legal studies under his elder brother,

P. W. Jenks. At the September term, 1859 he led in was their home, and that home was dewas opposed by the leading legal talent at the bar, including Hon. I. G. Gordon, Hon, W. P. Jenks and Hon. G. W. Ziegler. He won the case and thence forward was employed in most of the important causes in his own county, and his name soon became familiar in many of the courts of western and central Pennsylvania, to which he was called for the trial of important cases. When not engaged in the courts, his life has been one of constant study and preparation. He never sought public position but was known as a Democrat. In the fall of 1874 he was tendered the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 25th listrict of Pennsylvania, against General Harry White. The district was heavily Republican, but his personal popularity and the tidal wave elected him to the 44th Congress. Speaker Kerr appointed him chairman of the committee on invalid pensions. A masterly report on the condition and working of the pension bureau, derived from an investigation by order of the House, he soon made, and followed this by a bill which was calculated to prevent future abuses. Bounty land warrants, which before this had been personal property, had become the plunder of a dishonest ring, which at one single time had seized upon over one hundred thousand acres of land, were changed to realty through his efforts, and so guarded that only the rightful owners, their legal heirs and assigns, could obtain them. His forensic ability first become known to the House in a discussion concerning the character of an Invalid Pension. He had asserted that an Invalid Pension, for death or disability of a soldier in the service, in the line of his duty, was a con-tract right. This was denied by some of the leading Republicans of the House. who alleged it was a mere gift or gratuity and a warm debate ensued, at the conclusion of which Mr. Jenks made a legal argument, tracing the legislation on the subject from and since the Revolutionary war, and establishing so conclusively the position he assumed, that it has not since been denied. This was soon succeeded by a legal discussion concerning the refusal of Hallett Kilbourne to testify before a committee of the House. The legal prominence he had already attained led the House to elect him as one of the seven managers on part of the House to conduct the impeachment of Secretary Belknap, the others being Messrs, Lord, Knott, Lynde, McMahon, Hoar and Lapham. On that trial before the Senate the defendant was represented by three leading lawyers of the nation—Hon. Jeremiah S. Black, Hon. Matt Carpenter and Hon. Montgomery Blair. Mr. Jenks was selected by the managers as one of the committee to draw the pleadings. He was afterwards appointed to make one of the arguments on the question of the jurisdiction of the Senate to impeach after the officer had resigned, and subsequently, in consequence of the illness of Mr. Lapham, he was selected to discuss the facts. His legal attainments were on this trial made conspicuous to the Senate and the nation, and conceded to be unsurpassed by any in the cause. The subject of the distribution of the Geneva award came before the House on majority and minority reports from the judiciary committee. Mr. Jenks offered an amendment to the majority report, and in support of the amendment and report as amended, made an argument involving some of the most difficult questions of in ternational law. The report, as amended by him, was passed by the House.

Soon after the meeting of the second session he was appointed by Speaker Randall as one of the committee of fifteen to investigate the conduct of the election in Louisiana, and on his return was appointed by the chairman of the Democratic caucus, with Mr. Field, of New York, and Mr. Tucker. of Virginia, to represent the Democracy of the House in preparing, presenting and discussing the facts and the law before the electoral commission. It fell to Mr. Jenks to make opening arguments in the cases of Louisiana and Oregon. While he was engaged in the discussion of the first of these cases before the Attorney and Counsellor-at-Law 21 Park Row, New York.
Collections made in all parts of the United States, and a general legal business transacted Befers by permission to Steinman & Hensee

• l a note of admiration of the argument to Senator Thurman, and in response received the following reply: "The more I hear this man, the more I admire him. He reasons like a Newton or La Place. He has spoken half an hour and has not uttered a superfluous word." This complimentary opinion was generally concurred in by those who heard or read the proceedings before the electoral commis In most of the legal discussions that arose in the House, Mr. Jenks participated, in addition to the full performance of his duties on the very laborious com-mittee of which he was chairman. At the expiration of his congressional term, he immediately resumed his professional pursuits, in which he has ever since been engaged. His extensive practice has included almost every branch that arises in the state and covers a very broad range of its area. His election to the supreme bench of the state will be but a just recognition of his superior legal attain-

Solid Southern Sentiment.

Memphis Appeal.

There is not one man in a million at the South, who knows anything of the laws of this country, who would be idiot enough to believe, or for a moment nurse the idea that payment for slaves will ever or could ever be made. Whatever the wishes of a few who are evidently demented may be, the people of the south, by an overwhelming majority, if called to vote on the question, would refuse to increase the national debt by a nickel to pay for negro slaves. We have lost blood and treasure too much already on account of the playes. We will pay not one cent more. We are with Hancock, and we are as the Democrats of Alabama declared on Wednesday last at Montgomery, committed by our State platforms and by "the action of every department of our State governments under their constitutions, and by the judges of our courts elected under them-first, to the acceptance of the results of the war; second, to the equal political rights of every citizen; third, to the faithful maintenance of the public credit, State and national, and unflinching opposition to the repudiation of any public obligations; fourth, to a free and fair exercise of the elective franchise; fifth, to the strictest economy in the administration of public affairs." As an honorable people we are pledged to main-tain the public credit, and we will. We agreed to the fourteenth amendment to the constitution, which says: Neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

Not one of the States "lately in rebellion" has ever attempted to revive the obligations amounting to many millions which conducting his first case in court, which they incurred during the war-held mostly was an all-important one to his clients, a by our own people—and the man does not widow and her minor children, whose all live who, having any position or character at stake, would suggest to any of the states pendent upon the result of the case. He the payment of even one cent of a debt incurred "in aid of the rebellion." What we have not attempted under our own state governments we are not likely to attempt under the federal government, and thus arouse the sectional hatreds, animosities and revenges we are so anxious shall sleep forever. No, we are with Hancock, and so far from paying for slaves, we declare with him that we think the time has come when all war claims, of whatever kind, should be barred. This is no new doctrine of the Appeal, or of the Sonthern people. In every canvass since 1868 we have protested against these unconstitutional assumptions of the Republicans and the idle dreams of the few who at the South nurse and coddle the dead past. When the war ended, the Southern people took account of stock, and found themselves stripped of everything. They at once went to work, and have been working diligently ever since, contributing as they could to the general welfare and rehabilitating their homes, made desolate by the war. They regarded, and do now regard the slaves as completely lost as the confederate and state bonds held by them as the expression of their fealty to the cause they upheld. This was their crowning sacrifice. They made that sacrifice cheerfully. They have turned their backs upon the past, and are work ing for a greater future than was possible to them under the old order of things. They would not, therefore, if they could, increase their burdens by paying for the slavesthey prefer to decrease them. They do not believe that a national debt is a national blessing-it is rather a national curse, and as such should be paid off honorably to the uttermost farthing, cent for cent, principal and interest, as fast as the necessities of the people of the whole republic will permit. We are with Hancock. Death to all war claims that cannot stand the test of the courts, of the constitution, and the laws made in pursuance of it. These are the sentiments of the solid South and we challenge successful contradiction of that statement. The people of the south have never and will never turn their backs > day, and that war claims that cannot stand the scrutiny of the federal courts ought to be thrown out-ought to be barred for-HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

A REMEDY WITHOUT A RIVAL for all

A REMEDY WITHOUT A RIVAL for all diseases arising from Nervous Debility, Sexual Disorders, over Indulgence of Vicious Habits, as well as from the prostration of old age. Its curative properties in violent and chronic forms of the following diseases have been attested to by the most Eminent Physicians:

Dyspepsia, Self Abuse, Headache, Dizzinesa, Sexual Exhaustion, Spermatorrhosa, General Debility, Impotency, Premature Decay, &c.

It has been in use for over forty years, and is to-day the most popular remedy for the diseases above mentioned in the WORLD. It can be used without regard to diet, is pleasant in taste, and better than all, it is a sure, safe and certain cure. It is no quack medicine, but stands upon its own merits, as any trial wil amply demonstrate. Since 1836 this remedy has always been sold for a much larger price than that for which it is now sold; but owing to the act that the time for the payment of an enormous royalty upon its manufacture has expired, it is offered to the suffering of both sexes at one dollar per package, so as to be within the reach of all; at which price it will be sent to any address tree of further charge.
